

Susan Clubb and Tom Pundyk

Susan Clubb and Tom Pundyk have been involved with Rossbrook House for decades- thanks to the friendship of Tom and his high school friend, Phil Chiappetta. Today they are members of the Rossbrook House Legacy Circle.

“I have known about Rossbrook House ever since Phil started working there many years ago,” Tom said. “I’ve attended various events at Rossbrook over the years.”

Susan took her involvement even further by becoming a volunteer. “I volunteered at Wi Wabigooni, reading to the students and helping out the teaching staff, from 2003-2018,” she said.

Over the years they have generously donated to Rossbrook House and encouraged others to get involved as well.

Tom, now retired from National Leasing, saw many employees become involved with Rossbrook House, from attending events to becoming board members.

“Everyone needs a place to turn when they have a time of need,” Tom said. “Rossbrook House creates the environment for opportunity for children and youth in the inner-city.”

Rossbrook House is important to both Tom and Susan, as they see a need for the service that Rossbrook House delivers. They decided to include a planned gift to Rossbrook House when they were doing their estate planning.
