

Susan Millican

For former member of the Rossbrook House Board Susan Millican, supporting Rossbrook House is a family tradition. Susan was introduced to Rossbrook House by her mother Sheila Chipman. Introducing Susan to Rossbrook House, along with Sheila's three hero's, Sister Bernadette, Sister Margaret & Sister Lesley, "was a part of her legacy!" The commitment of these three women to the children of Rossbrook House continues to be an inspiration to many.

Susan, and her husband James, have built on her mother's legacy by arranging for a planned gift in support of Rossbrook House and joining the Foundation's Legacy Circle. When asked why leave a planned gift in support of Rossbrook House Susan shared that "once you visit Rossbrook House and meet the children your heart is open to helping in anyway you can." Susan is an active member of the Rossbrook House community, in addition to being a financial supporter she is currently volunteering on the 2023 No Child Alone Dinner Committee.

"Our city is only as vibrant and healthy as our children and their families."

A firm believer that those who "can have a responsibility to help ensure that all Winnipeg children can reach their potential." Susan shares the importance of facilitating equal playing fields for children to succeed, while acknowledging that "it takes time to make significant changes in the world." Susan sees their legacy gift as a way to "ensure your commitments to a cause continue after you're gone."

To those considering making a legacy gift Susan says...

My father had 12 precepts that he lived by. The first precept was "The winners in the world are those who give". To me it always sounded like a wise and true adage. Leaving a legacy is an important way to continue giving.
